JAP FORCES CONTINUE ADVANCE

LAUNCH OFFENSIVE AGAINST CHINCHOW BY LAND, SEA, AIR

Last Important City
Object Of Latest
Military Move

By International News Service
By land, sea and air, Japanese forces converged today on Chinchow, last remaining "key city" of Manchuria except Harbin still in the hands of the Chinese.

The latest word from the battle front reported that the vanguard of the Japanese army under General Shigeru Honjo had advanced to Tientsin, fifty miles north of Chinchow on the Peiping-Mukden Railway, following a severe clash with Chinese troops at Paichih.

Japanese authorities justified their advance upon Chinchow where Great Britain has extensive interests by an alleged attack by Chinese troops upon the Japanese and Italian concessions at Tientsin. Fearing new outbreaks of fighting in the latter city, known as the "New York" of China because of the polyglot population and extensive shipping interests, Tientsin was under strict martial law.

With the landing of Japanese soldiers at Chinchow, port of Shanhaiwan, Chinese troops outside the great wall in the regions of Tientsin and Chinchow were caught in a vise, according to International News Service dispatches, facing hostile forces on all sides.

Foreign military attaches en route to Tientsin to study the situation at first hand, hurriedly returned to Mukden when news of the renewed hostilities reached them.

In Paris, Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate to the League of Nations council, made an impassioned appeal for strengthening the hands of the military attaches in an effort to prevent the threatened occupation of Chinchow through combined opposition of the world powers.

TOKYO, Nov. 27.—Japanese forces bombed the important city of Chinchow on the Peiping-Mukden Railway this morning, according to word received in official sources here.

BANDITS FLEE WITH $4,000 FROM STORE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27.—Police today attempted to trace the flight of five men who staged a $4,000 holdup of the Art Rose Cigar store here last night, in which the manager of the store and six customers were lined up at the point of pistols.

Paul Hillon, manager of the shop, said all the robbers carried guns and herded the six customers who were playing cards, into a rear room and forced him to open the safe and the cash register. They obtained $3,800 of the company's receipts and then took money and jewelry from Hillon and the six men.

Two of the bandits stood guard while the others went through the pockets of their victims. Hillon was unable to say whether they made their escape in an automobile or on foot.

HINKLER, FAMOUS AVIATOR, MISSING

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 27.—Ships in the South Atlantic and airplanes operating along the South American and African coasts were asked today to search for Bert Hinkler, noted Australian aviator, who took off from Natal Wednesday for an unannounced destination.

Although Hinkler headed eastward from Natal apparently with the intention of making a 1500-mile flight to Dakar, French West Africa, it was learned that he remarked before his departure that he expected "to see Australia in a few hours."

MUST REMOVE SNOW POLICE ANNOUNCE

Following numerous complaints received at police headquarters Friday morning as an aftermath of the heavy snowfall, police broadcast a warning to citizens that under terms of a city ordinance, snow must be removed from sidewalks before 9 a. m. each day. Police say sidewalks were in an especially sloppy condition early Friday because moderate temperatures transformed the snow to slush.

RAINBOW IN INDUSTRIAL SKY

State University Economist Sees Basis For Optimism In Ohio Business Trend

(Editors Note: What is this thing called depression? International News Service presents here a series of articles surveying the condition of each of the various Ohio industries as to whether there is an upturn, if so, how definitely established it is and what the future holds for the industry. The first article reviews the general economic situation in the state. Following articles will deal with separate industries.)

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27.—"There is a rainbow in Ohio's industrial sky," one of the state's foremost economists assured International News Service today.

Prof. Gordon Hayes, widely-quoted member of the economic faculty at Ohio State University, author of the economic textbooks and "Radio Economist" for station WEAQ, declared that recent business developments have convinced him that there is a basis for optimism in the industrial world.

The following three reasons were cited for believing that a business upswing is near at hand:

1. Recent increases in commodity prices.

2. Recent declines in the hoarding of money.

3. Increases in steel production and in a few other lines of industry.

Regardless of how unfortunate it is, the prosecution of war by China and Japan also would tend to revive business in all parts of the world, Prof. Hayes said.

"Once recovery gets under way," he declared, "it is likely to proceed rapidly, as we may expect the same cumulative effects on the upside that we have experienced on the downside. Every thousand that we put back to work will have increased buying power which will give jobs to other men."

No miracles were forecast, however. No Pollyanna optimism was evident in his words. He said he frankly recognizes that conditions now are still very bad.

"Employment in Ohio now stands at 75 as compared with 100 in 1926 and 115 in the summer of 1929. The present point is the lowest for the depression."

"This tragic condition cannot be corrected at once, but the increase in commodity prices has given increased buying power to a large number of persons, and furthermore this has spurred business men to buy raw materials now rather than to wait until later," he said.

WILL HONOR ROCK

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Celebrities in the sports world will pay tribute to the late Knute Rockne, football coach at Notre Dame, in a broadcast just before the Army-Notre Dame game here tomorrow.

The speakers will include General R. Smith, superintendent of the academy at West Point; Dr. Charles L. O'Donnell of Notre Dame University; Gene Tunney, and Chick Meahan, coach of New York University's eleven.

AUTOIST MOBBED BY CROWD AFTER WOMAN STRUCK BY MACHINE

Angry Pedestrians
Threaten Man; Held
By Police

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27.—Mobbbed by a crowd of angered pedestrians after his machine struck and fatally injured an aged woman, George Melbourne Jr., who said he was a resident of Canton, O., was taken to Central Police station today and held pending an investigation of the accident.

The victim, Mrs. Anna Simmons, 60, walked into the path of Melbourne's machine after she alighted from a street car on Cleveland's east side, according to police information.

Stopping his car and attempting to place the woman in the back seat with the intention of taking her to a hospital, Melbourne was upbraided by the crowd for the manner which he was handling her, he told police.

The crowd, he said, removed the injured woman from his car and placed her in a taxi which took her to Polyclinic Hospital where she died shortly after her arrival.

AUTHOR EXPECTED
NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Edgar Wallace, Britain's "mass-production" author, was to arrive here today on his way to Hollywood.

TREASURY BALANCE
WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Treasury balance as of Nov. 24: $157,332,299.33; expenditures, $7,555,157.17; customs receipts, $22,861,128.58.

This good news came from the financial pages: "The decline in hoarding is evidence of increased confidence which will increase spending and reduce the pressure on banks. The fact of hoarding has been shown by the increase in money in the hands of the public. The paper money of the federal reserve bank system has been increasing steadily since the first of August and now stands at one billion dollars more than a year ago, but during the past week there was a decrease of $46,000,000 in the amount of such money outstanding.

"Pressure on banks has also been relieved by the formation of the national Credit corporation," he pointed out. "Although not used to any great extent, the mere fact of its formation increased confidence and thus made its utilization less necessary than was predicted."

In President Hoover's plan for home banks there is also considerable encouragement, he said.

"Once that plan gets under way it will throw out many frozen assets which now are not only resulting in great curtailment of buying power but contributing to the general state of pessimism," Professor Hayes said.

"It is to be regretted that the President did not evolve this plan some months ago and call Congress into special session to get it started. Congress can hardly be expected to provide the necessary legislation before the first or middle of January."

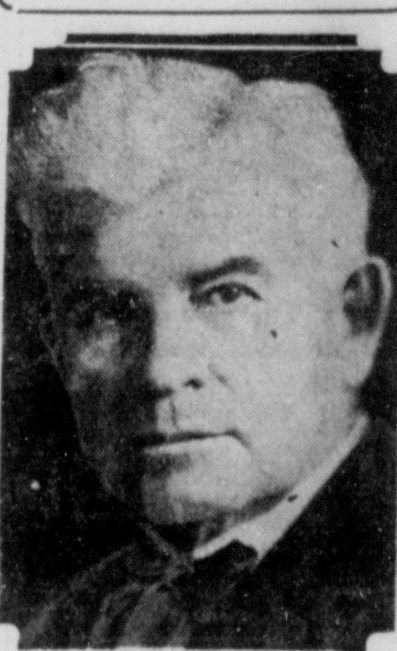

Pieced together, all these recent changes have resulted in a general feeling of new hope and encouragement which in itself is bound to assist the state and nation to pull themselves out of the hole, according to Professor Hayes.

With his textbooks filled with stories of industrial slumps in the past, it seems to Professor Hayes that "depressions are inherent in our economic system."

However, the country, "needs to go as far as it can to cut down the swing of business activity," in his opinion. "By using an unemployment insurance plan we can prevent the buying power from being seriously lessened at the beginning of a depression and prevent business from falling as far as it would otherwise," he stated.

WALKER INTEREST IN MOONEY CASE UNDER FIRE FROM CRITICS

FLOOR LEADER?

Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, who is holding a strong position as candidate for Democratic floor leader and claims the solid support of the Illinois delegation.

GANG ARSENAL CONFISCATED

Cleveland Police Capture
Gunmen

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27.—Averting a pitched gun battle by capturing two suspected gunmen while they slept, police today raided a reputed gang arsenal here and confiscated a large number of sawed-off shotguns, pistols, machine guns and other weapons and ammunition.

Three automobiles loaded with heavily-armed police and detectives were dispatched to raid the room, located in an east side residence, on a tip. Acting quickly, the raiders crept into the room where the two lay sleeping and grappled with them before they could reach for their guns, concealed under their beds.

Both of the suspects arrested have long criminal records, police said. After a grilling by detectives, one of them allegedly confessed to four robberies, police said.

The convict eleven suffered his second defeat in three starts when he lost to the White Plains Bulldogs at the prison stadium yesterday, 13 to 7.

Four of the inmates, with megaphones, led an organized cheering section, the prisoners had their own "college songs" and quarter-back Alabama Pitts led the Sing Sing eleven in faultless style, but the boys just couldn't win.

Only eighty-five outsiders saw the game.

TWO KILLED WHEN AUTO IS WRECKED

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27.—Fatally injured in a head-on crash between an automobile and a street car, Lloyd Toech, 25, and Clarence Buncher, 30, occupants of the machine, were dead here today.

Five passengers in the street car were thrown from their seats by the impact, but none were hurt. Police said the automobile was traveling eastward on Euclid Ave. at a high rate of speed and ploughed into the front of the street car, bound west, while attempting to pass traffic on the street. Toech, owner of a Cleveland garage and driver of the machine, died almost instantly, while his companion died from a fractured skull and internal injuries later in Emergency Clinic Hospital.

SIX INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

WILMINGTON, O., Nov. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. George McCoppin and their two children, of Sabina, O., were recovering in a hospital here today from injuries received when their car collided head-on with an automobile driven by Dr. L. B. Harris, Columbus surgeon, on the highway near Washington Court House last night.

Dr. and Mrs. Harris also injured in the collision, were taken to Columbus. Mrs. Harris was in a hospital there with a broken arm. Forrest McCoppin, elder of the two children, was seriously injured. His hip was dislocated and he suffered severe cuts.

HUNTER FATALLY SHOT
POMEROY, O., Nov. 27.—Mose Jesse, 22, was dead here today from wounds received in a hunting accident. When his shotgun was discharged accidentally he was shot in the back.

California Stirred By Visit; Accused Of Self-Promotion

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—Mayor James J. Walker's sudden and dramatic entrance into the celebrated Mooney case has stirred public opinion in California.

Everywhere citizens meet in San Francisco, the New York mayor's rather unexpected journey across the country to intercede for the imprisoned labor leader has become a lively topic of discussion.

The press of California is devoting columns of space to his visit and a number of skeptical newspapers are asking: "What really prompted Mayor Walker to make the trip?" and "evidently knows it."

Today he again devoted considerable study to the plea he will make next Tuesday before Governor James R. Rolph, Jr., for a pardon for Tom Mooney who has served fifteen years of a life sentence to San Quentin prison for alleged participation in the Preparedness Day bombing in 1916 which cost ten lives.

Unlike previous trips away from New York, Mayor Walker has persistently turned down invitations of a special or political nature. His public appearances are rare. He spends most of his time in his hotel suite within easy access to the mass of documents dealing with the Mooney case. He holds numerous conferences with his co-counsel, Frank P. Walsh, eminent labor lawyer, and Aaron Sapir, another famous attorney long associated with the Mooney defense.

Mayor Walker's demeanor is consistent with the seriousness of his mission to California. He has told reporters he is not here to "wise-crack." He said after his visit to Mrs. Mary ("Mother") Mooney that he "never was more serious about anything in his life" as he is about the Mooney case.

Yet even though Mayor Walker gives every evidence of an absorbing interest in Mooney, a portion of the California press questions his motive in coming into the case and precipitating a hearing that in some respects is without precedent in American jurisprudence.

Typical of the criticism leveled at Walker was the editorial comment in today's San Francisco Examiner that the mayor's sensational trip to California "is apparently nothing more or less than a project of self-promotion."

"California is accustomed to having the Mooney case discussed not only all over America but all over the world," said the Examiner.

"But California does not appreciate the staging of red fire political parades here when they are well known to be out of date in Mr. Walker's home town."

The Examiner points out that Mayor Walker faces many political problems back home. It says that in the Mooney case Walker "has all the fun and none of the responsibilities" and adds:

"Governor Rolph has been disappointed to pardon Mooney."

"The committee to which the legal question has been referred is liberal, and believed to be favorable to Mooney."

RADIO FANS ASKED TO DONATE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27.—Fans who "see" the Ohio State-Minnesota football game tomorrow from beside their radio were asked today to pay for the privilege by contributing to a charity fund being raised to buy shoes for needy Ohio school children.

Major E. O. Braught, chairman of Gov. George White's emergency relief cabinet, made the plea after M. H. Stanley of Dayton sent in a check for $5. The game at Minneapolis is to be played for charity and Governor White previously asked that Ohio's share of the proceeds be used to buy shoes and clothing for poor children.

"We can promise that every dollar donated to this fund will be converted into shoe leather to protect the feet of some small child from freezing during the coming winter months," Major Braught said.

Tomorrow's game will be broadcast over Station WCAH.

Lya De Putti, Famous On Stage And Screen, Dies

Hungarian Beauty Is
Victim Of Blood
Poisoning

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Lya De Putti, famous Hungarian screen and stage star, died today in Harbor Sanitarium from a complication of blood-poisoning and pleurisy.

Internationally acclaimed by adoring multitudes, the actress was alone at the end except for her closest friend, Ramona Nigelski, who had come with her to this country in 1926 as her secretary.

For several days, Miss De Putti had been kept alive only through the administration of oxygen.

She began her losing battle with death last week, when blood-poisoning developed, after a chicken bone lodged in her throat had been extracted without an operation.

A slight laceration caused in her throat by the bone led to the serious ailment.

Shortly afterwards, pleurisy set in, and doctors began to despair of her life, although until the last they believed her strong constitution would enable her to recover from the attack.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY ELDERS MAY SHELVE PROHIBITION TALK

Favor Postponement In Next Session, Is Learned

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Democratic leaders of the house have decided to make a bold effort to shelve the prohibition question during the coming session of congress, it was learned authoritatively today.

This position, adopted by party "elders" from southern dry states, is expected to add to the difficulties which have been piling up for the Democrats since they became the majority party in the house.

Northern Democrats who were elected on the wet issue are determined to couple the abolition of prohibition with measures or the economic improvement of the country.

"The position of the majority of the party leaders was outlined to International News Service by one who will have power in dealing with the prohibition question as follows:

"I favor a postponement of prohibition action at this session. Restoration of the country's economic position is all-important. I am a dry, although I voted against national prohibition on the theory that you can't legislate from the top down."

The prohibition issue has projected itself into the Democratic leadership fight between Rep. John J. O'Connor of New York and Henry T. Rainey of Illinois.

Friends of O'Connor charge that dry Democrats are seeking to head off his candidacy for the office because he has been a prominent foe of prohibition in house debates.

Wet Democrats are aroused by reports that the dry Democrats will make an effort to "pack" the judiciary committee and perhaps to restore the old committee on the alcoholic liquor traffic and give it jurisdiction of all prohibition questions.

The judiciary committee now has five dry Democrats and two wets on it. When the Democrats assume control, they will have eight members. A strong fight will be made in the party caucus by the wets for an even break.

Some extreme dries, it is reported, hope to restore the old alcoholic liquor traffic and make it an out and out dry committee. This report was denied by some of the rules experts. The committee, which was in existence for fifty years until 1927, had little to do for ten years before it was discontinued. All major dry law functions had been lodged in the Judiciary committee, which framed the Volstead act.

The alcoholic liquor traffic committee, which was primarily an investigating body, could be utilized, to counter any inquiries forced by congressional wets.

The Republicans of the house also faced factional difficulties as the Pennsylvania delegation met to decide whether it would support Rep. Tilson of Connecticut or Rep. Snell of New York for the speakership.

Both Snell and Tilson force claim a majority of Republican votes in the party conference which will be held Monday.

Nomination for speaker by a minority party usually carries with it the men floor leadership. Since Tilson has held the post of majority leader, however, he insists that he will be the Republican leader even if he is defeated for speaker.

REPUBLICAN PARTY LEADERS WOULD BAR COOPER AND BROWN

Report Groups Would Eliminate Two Candidates

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27.—Developments in Ohio political circles apparently have reached what might be styled the "elimination stage"—particularly insofar as the Republican gubernatorial contest is concerned, it appeared today.

Two groups of Republicans seemingly are desirous of inducing former Governor Myers Y. Cooper and Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown to keep out of the G. O. P. race for governor.

Secretary of State Brown was silent today when asked to comment on the persistent report that Pastmaster General Walter Brown of Toledo, and other prominent members of the so-called "Hoover forces" in Ohio, have been seeking to convince him that it would be "to the best interests" of the Republican party from the viewpoint of the re-election of President Hoover and the success of the G. O. P. state ticket next year, if he would stay out of the gubernatorial pre-primary race and throw his support to Assistant Secretary of the Navy David S. Ingalls of Cleveland.

It is known that the postmaster general recently held a conference with Secretary Brown at the state-house here.

Although Brown was said to have denied the truthfulness of the report, there is a rumor in state-house circles that the postmaster general wielded considerable influence to bring Ingalls to announce his candidacy.

Intimate friends of Brown today hinted that the secretary of state will soon ally all doubt as to whether he will enter the gubernatorial contest—by being the first to "weigh in" with a formal declaration of candidacy.

Local supporters of former Governor Cooper today predicted that Cooper will make the G. O. P. gubernatorial contest a three-cornered one despite the claim of some Ohio "drys" that he should keep out of the race in order to make possible the defeat of Ingalls, who is expected to be classified as a "liberal" candidate.

A number of the members of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, according to reports, are desirous that the "dry" strength be undivided in support of Brown, in the belief that only under such a situation can Ingalls be defeated at the G. O. P. primary election, to be held May 10.

Although admitting that such an attitude would be "a logical one" for "drys" to take, Supt. S. P. McNaught, of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, today declared that as yet the League has taken no action relative to the approaching state political campaign. He did not know of any political activity, along this line, on the part of any "drys" as individuals.

"It is rather hard to tell now what we will do," said McNaught. "It is not likely that the League will determine upon any policy of political action before the first of next year, unless somebody springs something that would require action on our part," McNaught declared.

FOUR KILLED

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 27.—Tragedy overtook a gay family today, when returning from a wedding feast, their automobile crashed into a tree and upset, killing the mother and two of her sons, while her husband and four other sons were injured. A friend who was driving the car was also killed.

VILLAGES TRAPPED BY BLIZZARD; MANY SUFFER HARDSHIPS

Ohio Is Blanketed; Snowfall In Xenia Over
Two Inches

GALLUP, N. M., Nov. 27.—Five hundred Indians were still on Cerro Alto and Santa Rita mesas today snowbound by the storm which has taken the lives of nine of their number within the past few days.

Superintendent G. A. Trotter of the Zuni agency said that Zuni, largest Indian village in the United States, with a normal population of 3,000, shared limited accommodations with hundreds of Navajos as the latter, seeking food and shelter, crowded into the Pueblos with the Zunis. Nearly all the Zunis have returned to their homes, Trotter said, the Indians still on the mesas being Navajos.

Clyde Walker, veteran Indian trader, broke a trail through rapidly melting snows to bring thirty-nine Indians from Atarque to Zuni in a truck yesterday. The Indians remaining at Atarque are the ones in need, Trotter said. Reports from those who broke through said whole families were without food.

No word had reached Zuni today from rescue parties battling their way through the snows in an attempt to reach the 500 Indians still atop the mesas.

The five Navajos found frozen to death yesterday were huddled together beneath a shelter of branches over the ashes of a fire. Three small children were in the group.

The blizzard which struck this region early in the week, described as the worst in the history of the Zuni country, caught more than a thousand Indians unprepared and unprotected on their annual pinon nut hunt. Nine deaths have been reported with the possibility that more may be found when rescue parties reach the storm swept mesa tops.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27.—A soft white coverlet of snow spread today over Ohio's autumn landscape, transforming it into a wintry scene which weather bureau officials believe may be broken up by a warm rain.

Snow which started falling last night gave the state its first taste of real winter weather. The weather bureau stated that the fall was general throughout Ohio.

As temperatures hovered around the freezing point, the observers predicted that a slight variation in conditions easily could convert the snow into rain and spoil the white blanket of snow.

Either rain or snow probably will continue tonight and part of tomorrow, they said.

The low clouds and driving flakes kept air traffic tied up in the state. Neither mail nor passengers could be transported, but airport observers stated that a few planes carrying mail might be able to take off late in the day.

Xenia was "snow-bound" Friday, although a white blanket that covered the city was gradually melting away under the influence of moderate temperatures, that lightly turned the feather material to slush on the streets and sidewalks.

Snow began to fall about 9 o'clock Thursday night, giving a wintry aspect to Thanksgiving Day, and during the night the snowfall measured 2.2 inches, according to an official announcement by Weatherman Ernest L. Harner.

The snow came as an upset, because there had been no mention made of this possibility in weather reports for the next twenty-four hours. Those who thought the threat of winter weather would be short-lived were doomed to disappointment, because the snow did not abate but continued to fall steadily throughout the night.

Temperatures were proportionately low. The low reading Wednesday night was 20 degrees. The mercury descended to 29 degrees and stopped Thursday evening. Late Friday morning the temperature stood at 31 degrees and was rising.

Making amends for the omission to forecast snow, probably turning to sleet, for Saturday, with little change in temperatures.

One reaction from the snowfall Thursday and Friday was to create a slippery and hazardous condition for autoists on the streets and highway. The light flaky material did not remain long in exposed places, but in others it formed a white, cold blanket that gave the city a distinct wintry appearance.

Roofs of autoists' cars were hampered by the fact their vision was obscured by the flaky substance clinging to the windshield.

It became increasingly evident as there was no abatement in the snowfall that the long heralded cold wave had arrived to stay, bringing with it low temperatures that were a far cry from the long unseasonable spell of autumnal warmth.

"LIGHTING UP" OF BLACK DRESSES IS AN ARTISTIC TASK

By ALICE LANGEIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
PARIS, Nov. 27.—The old saying that "black or white is always right" is an important slogan of the French dressmaker even in this season of very gay colors. For French women in general have always had an unflinching fondness for black, knowing that it is both beautiful and becoming as well as economical.
White is the only serious rival of black for the winter evening gown, and the women who are most enthusiastic about the all-white frock make a point also of having at least one really smart black evening gown.
A great deal of attention is being given to the "lighting up" of the black gowns which means a very subtle touch such as cascade draperies in tulle used by Jeanne Lanvin on a picturesque black model with a floral design in strass gleaming on the all-black corsage.
Maggy Rouff "lights up" a black velvet with a youthful arrangement of Irish lace in half flounces on the skirt and a festooned pearl ornament on the bodice.
A black georgette with a new scarf drapery has a gleaming diamond buckle and another in black lace obtains its lighting from the wearer's white arms, for it has detachable elbow-sleeves made of black lace.
A beautiful all-white evening gown is slimly-moulded with a vivid scarlet flower at the waistline.

NEW BULLETIN ON WINTER PIG FEEDING

Grain is wasted when an attempt is made to feed it to pigs without supplementing it with a small amount of some high protein feed. In winter feeding trials conducted by W. L. Robinson, in charge of swine feeding investigations at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, corn and tankage produced gains almost twice as rapidly as did corn alone. Furthermore, each pound of tankage fed saved 4.7 pounds of corn. Although few feeds are superior to tankage for use as the only supplement to grain, pigs without pasture often fail to thrive and they should on merely grain and tankage. This is particularly true of late fall pigs that are still rather small at the close of the grazing season, or at the time they are placed in their winter quarters.
In investigations with the improving of corn and tankage for winter feeding, a combination of skimmed milk and tankage was found to be a more effective supplement than either skimmed milk or tankage alone. Approximately a half gallon of milk and a fifth of a pound of tankage per head daily were fed. A mixture of one pound of linseed meal or cottonseed meal to two pounds of tankage likewise proved superior to tankage alone. Feeding a little ground alfalfa, or other leguminous hay, with any of these combinations was beneficial. Half as much alfalfa as tankage was fed. When the quality was such that the pigs ate it, whole hay was equally as efficient. The mixture of tankage, a plant protein concentrate, and a ground leguminous hay is adapted to self feeding in one compartment of a self feeder, with grain in the others. Or, if ear corn is used, it may be fed at the rate of 0.5, 0.6, and 0.8 pound per head daily to pigs under seventy-five, between seventy-five and 125, and over 125 pounds in weight, respectively. Three-fourths as much supplement will suffice if the hay is fed whole rather than ground and included in the mixture.

These and other tests of a similar nature are reported in Bulletin 488, "Improving Corn and Tankage for Pigs not on Pasture."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

It is a snare to the man who devoureth that which is holy, and after vows to make enquiry.—Proverbs, xx, 25.

FROM THE PILGRIMS

Three hundred and ten years ago, when the Pilgrim Fathers in the little settlement of Plymouth had gathered their first harvest of crops in the New World, they set aside a day for thanksgiving and feasting. According to legend, friendly Indians were invited to share the bountiful meal which is, to the thoughtless, the principal feature of the modern observance.

It is said that the Indians, wishing to contribute a share of the feast, brought among other items the first popcorn the Pilgrim Colony had ever seen. Soon after their arrival, maize, or Indian corn, had been discovered to the colonists by the Indians, who taught them to plant it in rows of hills, with fish buried in each hill to fertilize the soil. Today the word "corn," derived from a teutonic word for "grain," may refer to the leading cereal crop of a region, as in England it means wheat, in Scotland or Ireland oats. But corn as we think of it in America was indigenous to this country.

Among the varieties the small kernel of the popcorn has a large proportion of the nutritious matter which constitutes the grain around the embryo. The horny consistency of its endosperm reacts to heat by virtually turning itself inside out, through the explosion of moisture contained within.

One can imagine how the eyes of the littlest Pilgrims, not to mention those of their elders, were like to pop out of their skulls at the first demonstration of tiny, hard grains bursting into fluffy, white objects three times the size of the grain. How their teeth must have closed over the delicious morsels, for all that what they ate could scarcely have been comparable to the "hot, buttered popcorn" of our day. Later perhaps some Pilgrim mother thought to mix popcorn with thin hot maple syrup or molasses and make a new kind of sweet for her children.

In any case, popcorn has long had its devotees. Before the introduction of puffed cereals, it was eaten as such with milk. It was covered with sugar syrup and molded into popcorn balls, forerunners of the violently pink and yellow confections of circus vendors. It is the basis for a popular commercial product. Nor should we forget that our thrifty parents have spent patient hours threading popcorn into long strands of whiteness to be draped upon the Christmas trees of our childhood, and nibbled thence in surreptitious ventures.

Popcorn is even more distinctively American than the ice cream soda. It belongs to a holiday as distinctively American as Thanksgiving Day.

The difficulties that 16 of the States of the Union are meeting in trying to arrange their representations in Washington in accordance with the provisions of the Congressional reapportionment law, do not arise because of any doubt about either the law or the facts, but because of a reluctance to acknowledge the facts and obey the law.

The disappointing thing about Gandhi's comment on the attitude of English society women is the evidence it provides that the Mahatma, like most other people, is unable to rise above sectional prejudice. He is provincial and narrowly intolerant just as other human beings are.

Other Editorial Thoughts

THE PRACTICAL SIDE OF HOUSING

Of the various proposals to solve financial problems that have been suggested none has been granted a more favorable reception than President Hoover's plan for establishment of a system of home loan discount banks to release frozen real estate assets and promote a revival of home building. Since its publication Nov. 13 a vast deal of favorable comment has been forthcoming. Unlike the plan for a national credit corporation it was close to the individual problems of millions of home owners. It was a sound proposal for solution of an important problem.

Congress will be asked to endorse the plan, which undoubtedly will have received the endorsement of Mr. Hoover's conference on home building and home ownership by that time. The conference is to convene in Washington December 2. Congress convenes December 4.

The problem of home building financing, while particularly acute at present, existed before the depression and will exist when it is over. The Hoover plan is intended to strengthen those institutions which make home financing all or part of their business permanently, as well as through the remainder of the depression.

It is common knowledge that residential building touched a new low for the depression in September. At present the principal prospect for betterment in this fundamental business activity is eventual accumulation of a housing shortage, such as led to the building boom that started in 1922 after the depression of 1921. The prospect is somewhat clouded, however, by "huddling"—the tendency in difficult times to move into smaller quarters and to "double up" with other families for the sake of living economy. This tendency not only is reflected in the demand for new housing space, but in the type of new building being done as well. Many new apartment houses, for instance, feature smaller living quarters than probably will be in demand when the depression is over.

These considerations, however, are closely connected with current conditions. In better times the opposite is true. Instead of "huddling" families "spread out" in larger quarters. The President's plan is designed to make it easier for them to afford more commodious quarters as quickly and easily as possible. A revival of building now would hasten recovery from the depression; a continuance of building, with the aid of more satisfactory financing, would help to stabilize business permanently. Strengthening of the credit system in home building is needed.

Funds for financing of home construction come chiefly from building and loan associations, insurance companies, mortgage companies and savings banks, through mortgages. It is one of the anomalies of real estate mortgage loans, however, that they are rated highly as safe investments, but are highly illiquid. The home owner who wants an extension finds that he cannot get it, due to extraordinary strain on his bank, perhaps. Unless he can raise money elsewhere, therefore, the mortgage may be foreclosed and the owner's equity wiped out. The general purpose behind Mr. Hoover's plan is to aid banks carrying large numbers of real estate mortgages, enabling them, in turn, to help home builders. A commendable feature of the plan, incidentally, is that it promises to accomplish its purpose without disturbing the existence and experienced institutions engaged directly in the business of home financing. The public, needless to say, is far more concerned with congressional action on this plan than it is with action on any one of several problems having an international flavor. — Portsmouth Times.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—What few New Yorkers know:

That President Hoover's Quaker parents were so strict they wouldn't let Herbert read spy magazines like The Youth's Companion.

That the first issue of a "gossip newsreel" will contain shots of Manhattan's most fashionable speakeasy filmed at full tilt without the patrons' knowledge.

That of the thirty-odd current Broadway shows, only three have been bought by the movies—which seek plots now in original script and magazine stories.

That the reason recent agitation for separate subway cars for women, painted white, got nowhere is that the scheme has been tried and failed—because the women wouldn't ride together, preferring to be mashed in all senses of the word than to abandon the co-ed cars.

That Bruce Barton, at the annual contest meeting of the Tall Story club, related the following yarn (and didn't win the prize): A southern game warden was asked why cottontail rabbits were so thin. He replied that the boll weevil, desperate because of the cotton crop shortage, were catching rabbits to get the cotton out of their tails.

That Prince Johann, of Liechtenstein, has a Texas girl for a bride, and that there are 3,000 Liechtensteins—or however you'd say it—in America. (Hey, San Antonio, did you dream such a thing?)

That the new vocation for society playboys is song writing instead of bond selling. Carlton Barclay, from one of the uppest Park avenue sets, wrote the lyrics for "Haunting Memories."

That Eugene Todd, 75, dean of the department store Santa Clauses, is a professional lodestone seller and grows his own beard and hair because "I want to play fair with my public."

That the novel "Bad Girl" was responsible for the following meteoric successes: Vina Delmar, the authoress; James Dunn and Sally Eilers, in the movie version; Sylvia Sydney on the stage, and Minna Gombell, the character actress in the movies.

That Urbane L. Barrett, the Iowa farm hand who extracts cube roots of 19 digit figures in a trice, got the inspiration for the trick while milking a cow, addresses learned societies and has been acclaimed a great mathematician, but has never made a cent out of his gift.

That Western Union messenger girls now scout about on roller skates, carrying death messages and those involving huge sums of money only.

That scholars seeking information about old Russia can find more of it in the Grand Duke Vladimir Alexandrovich collection at the New York public library than in Russia herself.

That the biggest penthouse in Hollywood is occupied by someone not in the movie business—while penthouses are New York's symbol of gilded aristocracy.

That debutantes now insist on "gallery parties" at the theaters, where they used to snuff at upper boxes; and that scores of Wall Street bond salesmen of the dinner jacket clique have been able to ward off the wolf with doses of caviar and cocktails at "teas."

KICKING GOAL FOR U. S. A.

JAPANESE PROPAGANDA KEEPS REST OF WORLD WELL INFORMED ON WAR

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—It will not be Japanese propaganda's fault if occidental public opinion fails to adjust itself ultimately to conformity with Tokio's recent policy in Manchuria—and what ever that policy may lead into.

The Japanese are not indifferent to what the rest of the world thinks of them.

Emphatically to the contrary, they greatly desire to be liked.

A number of years ago, as Far Eastern correspondent for one of America's big news agencies, I made my headquarters in Tokio with a similar association known as the Nippon Dempo Tsushin Sha (or Japan Telegraph News Company).

Between which and my own outfit an arrangement existed for an exchange of dispatches.

In the course of this relationship I was not long in discovering that the Japanese have a very acute appreciation of the value of favorable publicity.

If, then, they have pushed ahead with their Manchurian program apparently in decided disregard of League or Nations formalities and such restricting compacts as the Kellogg treaty, their course may safely be interpreted as implying simply that they were in a prodigious hurry to accomplish what they had made up their minds to accomplish whether or no, and not at all suggesting that they do not intend to be as politely explanatory as possible after they have accomplished it—when it will be too late to interfere with them.

Indeed, they doubtless realize that, should their plans involve them in a clash with Russia, they will want world sympathy on their side while it progresses, and indications are that they already are shaping their publicity accordingly.

As to Russia, it is evident that they will be able to make out a pretty good case, too.

They will be defending civilization rebuked over every trifling incident of these days.

I remember a friend who was killed in the war. I had stopped to talk to him on the road. He said good-bye with a laugh and fell lifeless a hundred yards away. I remember now that I was more furious than agonized and very often I think of that.

I remember an experience of my own from which I did not dare to think. I would emerge alive. It was a nightmare of mustard gas that made me sick and made me vomit of shell that fell too close, of poor, torn bodies, of wild excitement and complete fatigue and sudden disgust. And looking back I see, I feel, I KNOW that I think not unpleasantly of those tragic scenes.

I am sure, also, that we are all like that. We do not shrink from the things we have known. Almost we glory in it. And how can such things be?

I cannot be certain, but I have an idea that we are tougher, stronger, more enduring than we suspect. We say that we want happiness and security, and that we wish our lives to run placidly along from their little sources to their limitless oblivion—but that is not true. We wish then to be exciting and dangerous, we wish more than all else to be made known to ourselves. And so, looking back we glory in our troubles, and like to believe that once, when we were young, we were tough!

Quite an appealing slogan!

Meanwhile, in their Manchurian haste, it must be admitted that the Japanese have permitted their military arm to proceed at a swifter pace than their propaganda.

Nevertheless, their propaganda has not lagged far behind.

Not once has it been at a loss for some self-defensive explanation to account for every offensive move the mikado's forces have made since trouble began in northern Chinese territory.

For each advance by General Honjo and his men there has been a conveniently murdered Japanese to show—or a ripped-up section of Japanese railroad or a bandit horde to exterminate or something else equally indispensable to be attended to.

It would have been better, it is true, if the murders and the railroad raids and the bandit outrages could have been announced first, with General Honjo et al coming along afterward, to punish them; instead of which, General Honjo has kept consistently in the lead, with the propaganda subsequently informing the world why he was compelled to do so-and-so.

To be sure, critics who are familiar with conditions in the Far East have mentioned that not all these stories sound thoroughly convincing.

It is hard, they say, to believe that the Chinese have so regularly assumed the aggressive in situations which manifestly were bound to result disastrously to themselves if they did so.

There may be a certain amount of cogency in these arguments, but try to prove anything!—with the Japanese in exclusive control of all means of communication leading outwardly from the disturbed area, and courteously but firmly declining any investigators but their own to enter it.

It is in periods of stress like the present that such organizations as the Nippon Dempo Tsushin Sha are infinitely helpful to a foreign journalist in Japan.

They will readily give him all the news he asks for.

They have it—the Nippon Dempo Tsushin Sha folk do—straight from their own war office, and are glad to have it disseminated everywhere that wires and wireless will carry it.

It would be very tactless, of course, to ask them if, by any chance, there may be the least bit of bias in it.

If, on the other hand, the occidental correspondent crosses over to China, to check up on his Japanese information, he finds no efficient news machine to assist him.

He finds a country where news circulates so imperfectly that a good-sized war (as big as the Russo-Japanese war) can rage in one corner of it and the rest of the population never discover that there is a war; a country with no more idea of modern publicity than it has of the current bank rate on the planet Pluto.

Naturally China stands small chance of getting its side of the Manchurian question adequately presented in the world press, in competition with up-to-date Nippon.

Russia, should she be drawn into the struggle, is more sophisticated. Japan, however, should have no difficulty in winning all right-minded peoples' sympathies against the U. S. S. R. on account of the Bolshevik menace.

It was a great pity that the girl let you go with her when she was practically engaged to No. 1. You would never have become so attached to her if you had not known her in that intimate way and been encouraged to think she loved you. It was not fair to you or to the other chap. However, that is in the past.

Ask other girls out, no matter how indifferent you are to them. Make up your mind that you will put her out of your life and you will, in time, succeed.

And, for the girl's sake, I hope the other fellow is an awfully fine chap, for she's turning down a splendid boy when she says good-bye to you, and I don't mean maybe.

Good luck to you.

ACTIVE SOLAR PROMINENCES
A second type of solar prominence is known as the "active." They are generally confined to the sun-spot areas and are named active because they will change their forms in brief intervals of time. They will ascend to great heights—as far as 100,000 or 150,000 miles, when, after several hours, they disappear. They are brilliant in color in contrast with the quiescent prominences. It should be mentioned that the quiescent prominence, so named because usually at rest, will sometimes become suddenly active and proceed to ascend with great rapidity as if some repellant force had struck it, driving it away from the sun as many as 400,000 miles.

Food, Heat Combat Winter Ill

By LOGAN CLENDENIN, M. D.

Every season and every climate make conditions which favor the development of certain diseases.

Winter is perhaps the unhealthiest of all the seasons. But modern conditions of living have done much to modify this. In the United States, at least we have warm houses. Our clothes prevent the most acute part of the suffering endured by those who have to spend their time out of doors in the winter. Modern transportation brings us fresh food in variety through the winter months. Artificial light gives us the sunshine which makes summer a naturally healthier period.

Primitive man huddled about the equator to avoid the stresses of winter weather. Only fairly late in his history did man begin to invade Europe. And during the 25,000-year period of their occupancy of that region, the Europeans have hardly made it habitable yet during the winter. As this winter deepens, thank God you are an American. Only under the most grinding necessity go to Europe from November to June. Furnaces in that region are rare, hot water almost unknown. For an American, thrashed to the decencies of life, a winter in England, living in an average English house, is a exquisite piece of torture as can be imagined.

If the Europeans would quit worrying about moratoriums and send a few prime ministers of furnace departments over here for advice it would bring the millennium much sooner.

In the United States our heating arrangements keep out the cold, but our ideas of ventilation are far from perfect. Every office building I know about is overheated from October to April. The humidity in most of them approaches the level of the Sahara desert. The circulation of air is practically nil. No wonder colds are the most frequent cause of disability in American industry.

Few of us appreciate what a large part modern transportation plays in keeping us healthy during the winter. The most certain cause of winter illness in the old days was lack of fresh food. Our grandfathers dug themselves in at the first snowfall, were sewed into their winter underwear and ate salt pork molasses and corn pone all winter. They risked all the food deficiencies diseases.

Now we have fresh oranges from tropical climates can be obtained in an hour in the dead of winter at every home except the most remote farmhouse. And even there is only a matter of a few more hours. Fresh meat and fresh milk are continuously available. Even if this were not so modern methods of canning and preserving would, and do, bring a great variety of foods to your table—foods which have been prepared in a manner that has not cooked the elements essential to health out of them.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
P. F. W.: "I want to ask about eczema—is it curable? Is diet important, etc.?"

Answer: Eczema as a medical term is gradually dropping out of use by doctors. What used to be classified as eczema is now recognized as several entirely different diseases. Some of these are easy to cure. My advice to this correspondent is to get an exact diagnosis by the best skin specialist available.

"What are the brown spots that appear on the hands, arms and face? Are they due to the wrong diet?"

Answer: Several skin diseases appear as brown spots. None of them, however, are supposed to be due to diet.

Boy Crazy About Her

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Miss Lee: I'm one of the No. 2's. I fell madly in love with a girl who was going with another fellow. I had a few dates with her but I never asked her to drop this other fellow. One night she told me, without me asking her, that she loved no one but me, and said she was going to give the other fellow his ring back."

"Things went along all right for awhile but she has never given me No. 1 ring, so I asked her why. She said she didn't quite know how to break the news to him. I told her to take her time. It was all right with me."

"One night a couple of weeks later she gave me back my ring and said she was sorry but she guessed she really loved No. 1 more after all."

"I still love her and it was sure hard to take, but I would rather have her marry No. 1 and be happy, if she really loves him, than have her marry me and be unhappy. We are the best of friends yet, but I don't bore her with my love any more, although I'm still crazy about her."

"I can't forget her. She is in my mind always. I dream of her. I think of her, and I live for the next time I'll see her. I'll go mad if I don't have a little advice soon. Tell me, do you think I'm doing the right thing? Oh, should I keep on trying to win her love?"

I think the best thing to do would be to have one more session with the girl, son, and ask her to tell you definitely if there is any hope for you. If she is sure she loves No. 1, the best thing to do is to drop out of the picture—best for you and for her, especially for you.

You are only torturing yourself by seeing her and if she has made up her mind that she really loves No. 1, you must make up your mind to forget her. Yes, I know this seems impossible. But it can be done. If you could go away from town for awhile it would help.

It was a great pity that the girl let you go with her when she was

Ways To Keep Skin Soft

By GLADYS GLAD

Back in the Eighteenth century the daughters of the nobility were permitted to take only three complete baths a year—and these during the summer season. The women of today, however, are not so rigidly cut off from the comforts of cleanliness as were these daughters of bygone kings. Modern women bathe daily—and they take their tubbings just as frequently in the winter as they do in the summer.

A good number of females, however, experience an unpleasant feeling of tightness and dryness of the skin when they bathe often during cold weather. It is not a "summer" feeling. The oil and sweat glands are more active in the warm weather. And it is an excess of oil from the pores rather than a lack which causes discomfort then. But at this time of the year, many women notice a dry, tight sensation of the skin after the bath.

Hot oil baths are usually advised by beauty specialists to correct this. The oil is rubbed into the skin as thoroughly as possible, and a few hours permitted to elapse before the body is bathed again. Or the oil rub is taken after the bath at night, and the body is not bathed again until the following morning. But some women find oil baths uncomfortable, or inconvenient.

Fortunately, there is a simpler and more comfortable method of keeping the skin soft. I have spoken before of the value of oatmeal and almond meal in cleansing the face when the skin is very dry. And as accessories to the bath, these meals are equally valuable.

For the soluble oils that they contain help to keep the skin smooth and supple.

An excellent practice is to make small cheesecloth bags and fill each of them with a half a cup of oatmeal, half a cup of almond meal, and one teaspoon of fine castile soap shavings. Then, when you take your bath, moisten one of the bags and use it to scrub your body as you would a washcloth.

Bran may also be used to soften the bath water. Boil a pound of bran in a gallon of water for half an hour, strain and add enough of the resultant solution to your tub of water to turn it milky. Or fill little cheesecloth bags with bran, and toss them into the tub. The bran will soften the water and help to end in keeping the skin soft, smooth and supple during the winter months.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

As football fades from the sporting spotlight, basketball usurps the center of interest. It is time to begin taking an inventory of what is likely to be what in Miami Valley League competition this season.

Xenia Central High has a spectacular record at stake, Buccaneer cage teams have never lost a league game since the circuit was organized four seasons ago, but this wonderful record may not survive another campaign.

Entry of Dayton Fairview into the league schedule for the first time also complicates the situation. Let us take stock of the league schools and their pre-season prospects.

Miamisburg High should be one of the strongest contenders. The Burgers have their last season's team intact except for Sam Capner, star center, and Kurtz, a substitute forward. The regulars back will include Kelly and Paramore, forwards, and Rex Weaver and Hiehle, guards.

Greenview High also has few worries. The school has lost Charles Sink, clever guard, and Howard Everhart, a good forward, but has R. Eberhart, forward, Williams, center, and Duffy, a fine guard, still in the fold, besides capable reserves like Wooten, J. Williams and Whittell.

Piqua Central will be without the services of its only outstanding player from last season, Clarence Williams, who alternated at center and guard; also Waring, a sub forward, and Hart, a guard. Available again will be Carder and Beaver, regular forwards, and Karns, a half center and half guard.

Xenia Central, four-time league champion, is probably the hardest hit of all the schools, losing three regulars, all of whom were selected on the first all-league team last season. Birch Bell, forward, who made the mythical team three years straight; Harold Glass, class center, and Lester Price, a fine running guard, are the three lost by graduation. This leaves Freddie Dalton, forward, and Howard Thompson, guard, as the surviving regulars, along with Jimmie Ralls, sub forward, and David Short, lanky reserve center.

Troy loses Morris Oxley and Byron May, forwards, and Snell, semi-regular center. Oxley was high scorer in the league last season. The regular Trojan guards, John Campbell, an all-league choice and Covatt, are back again, as are Hobbs and Gnodde, sub forwards.

Sidney will have to worry along without Louis Krutzer, all-league forward, Sylvester Stephan and Douglas, regular guards, and Monroe, sub forward. Sidney cagers available again include Elmer Fauber, huge center, who made the second all-star team; Collins, forward, and Clark who was ineligible last season until the second semester. Clark's basket shooting in the state tournament play at Dayton was sensational and he almost beat Middletown single-handed with his uncanny accuracy. He will be eligible only the first semester during the coming season but Xenia plays Sidney at Sidney during the first semester. Unfortunately,

Fairview, the new league team to be reckoned with, is not embraced by this brief survey because the Dayton school will be an unknown quantity from present indications. The school will more than hold its own in league competition if past records mean much.

In summarizing the prospects of the various league members, it is of course impossible, before the practice sessions even start, to take into consideration what benefits will be derived from new crops of candidates. All the teams will have new material on display and some schools will be better off than others in this respect.

GRANGE IS VICTOR

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—The civic rivalry between Chicago's two professional football teams was settled today, at least for another year. Red Grange's Bears enjoyed the upper hand on Erie Beaver's Cardinals, having garnered an 18 to 7 victory in their annual Thanksgiving Day battle at Wrigley Field.

MIAMISBURG AND GREENVILLE SHARE LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

Miamisburg and Greenville share the football championship of the Miami Valley League for the 1931 season.

This unexpected turn of affairs resulted when Piqua High, which had not won a league game all season, staged a spectacular comeback to score two touchdowns in the fourth period and defeat Troy High, 13 to 12, in their annual Thanksgiving Day game at Troy. The Trojans had been heralded as an easy winner and a victory would have given them the undisputed league title.

Miamisburg was idle, having completed its league competition, but Greenville elevated itself into a tie with the Burgers for first place by handing Sidney a 6 to 0 beating in another Turkey Day con-

Buccaneers Not Thankful; Held To 6-6 Tie

SPECTACULAR TOUCHDOWN DASH CHEATS XENIA OF WIN AT URBANA

Central Outrashes Turkey Day Foe But Lacks Scoring Punch In "Coffin Zone;" Huston's Scoring Run Is Bright Spot

XENIA CENTRAL and Urbana were even-steven at the end of forty-eight minutes of play in their Thanksgiving Day football debate on a slippery Urbana gridiron.

Engaging in a game that wrote "finis" on their current football campaign, the Buccaneers, though they outplayed their maroon and white-clad opponents by a wide margin, were held to a 6 to 6 draw by a scrappy Urbana eleven that was at the point of exhaustion when the final gong sounded.

All the scoring was confined to the second period. Urbana crossed Xenia's goal line first when one of Howard Thompson's passes was intercepted by Whitmore, quarterback, who speared the ball on his own thirty-yard stripe, then dodged and straight-armed his way through a broken field on a seventy-yard touchdown jaunt. Huston's attempted drop-kick for extra point was wide of the uprights.

Later in the period, after an exchange of punts had benefited Xenia, the Bucs took the ball on the Urbana forty-five-yard stripe. After four line plays had picked up 47 feet, Tommy Huston, subbing for Wagner at halfback, started around right end, then cut back thirty yards and galloped across the goal line. The needed extra point was not forthcoming, however, because Freddie Dalton's drop-kick was blocked.

Throughout the balance of the game, the activity was largely confined to a punting duel between Thompson, Xenia halfback, and Carey, Urbana fullback, with the Buccaneer booter having a distinct advantage. His long and accurate kicks kept the ball deep in Urbana territory much of the time.

Xenia, fighting desperately to break the deadlock, launched drive after drive toward the Urbana goal but all these well meant gestures availed little because on occasions when the Bucs became menacing, Urbana gridders rose to great defensive heights.

The Bucs began throwing passes as the game neared a close and a well-timed aerial offense almost but not quite upset the Urbana apple cart. Taking the ball on the Urbana forty, Thompson heaved a pass for twenty yards to Wagner. Another aerial was complete from

WILBERFORCE CLAIMS NATIONAL TITLE WHEN WEST VIRGINIA BOWS

Ends Season Without Defeat; Classic Is Won By 12 to 6

ROUNDING out an undefeated season, Wilberforce University further justified its claim to the national colored football championship by punching out a 12 to 6 victory in its yearly Thanksgiving Day football classic with West Virginia State at Charleston, W. Va.

Climaxing a smashing drive from West Virginia's twenty-five-yard line, the ferocious Bulldogs scored the first touchdown early in the initial period. The Yellow Jackets, battling valiantly against defeat, evened the count in the second quarter, but were unequal to the task of matching another touchdown tallied by the Green and Gold wave in the third stanza.

Wilberforce scored eight straight victories during the season, playing a representative schedule high in the East, South and West. Here is the Wilberforce football record, on which the school bases its claim for national recognition:

Wilberforce, 62; West Kentucky State, 0.
Wilberforce, 24; Kentucky State Industrial, 6.
Wilberforce, 15; Tuskegee Institute, 6.
Wilberforce, 32; Alabama State, 0.
Wilberforce, 10; Langston, Okla., 6.
Wilberforce, 32; Bluefield Institute, 0.
Wilberforce, 14; Lincoln University (Penn.), 6.
Wilberforce, 12; W. Virginia State, 6.

"What are you more than these?" asked a sage in drawing a comparison between man and the animals in a field. ## A Symbol?

And they came, every one whose heart stirred him up, and every one whom his spirit made willing, and they brought the Lord's offering to the work of the tabernacle of the congregation, and for all his service.—Exodus 35:21.

To Parents

The importance of forming in children the habits they are expected to practice throughout life seems too often to have been overlooked. Why not guarantee for the parents of tomorrow sound Christian character by TAKING YOUR CHILDREN TO SUNDAY SCHOOL?

To Visitors

"I am come," said the Master, "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." In the spirit of the more abundant life, and with a lively sense of our common brotherhood, the churches of this city cordially invite you to their services. Do not miss them.

OUR children should be taught to give to the Sunday School not only cheerfully and regularly, but in proportion to what they have. It is not what the School profits by their gifts, but what the children benefit by giving, that is of vital importance. If we parents allow the lowliest product of our mints—one-fifth the price of an ice-cream cone—to be the symbol of love to God and aspiration to serve, will not giving, love, service, inevitably rank low in the children's scale of values?

Santa Claus Announcing:
All of Toyland knows that Santa Claus has been invited by some wonderful children to visit them with his reindeer and give these children an opportunity to tell him their Christmas wishes.

Great difficulties will be encountered on this trip. Many dangers must be evaded if the children of the world are not to be disappointed. Santa's party will travel over vast, unknown fields of ice and snow. Hour after hour they will travel through darkness. Hour after hour the gallant, lion-hearted, tiny reindeer will fly over uncharted lands encountering blizzards and snow driven by winds of unmeasured velocity. Wolves may attempt to pull his reindeer down. On the eve of this dangerous journey, Santa Claus has gathered Toyland together in Toyland's Chapel that they may seek the protection of that all-knowing, all-powerful Ruler of the Universe. The children of the world are asked to join in the petition for Santa's guidance.

"Please, Heavenly Father, guide, protect and bless our Santa Claus and all his party. Through Thy love enable him to create happiness in the hearts of millions and may the laughter of little children be the reward of all who have helped make this blessed Christmas season possible."

Santa leaves Toyland in the morning.

Gillette Blue Super-Blade

Far Exceeds most Optimistic Predictions

LAST week we told you the New Gillette Blue Super-Blade was a sensation! We had never dared hope for the overwhelming surge of public acceptance that followed close on the heels of its introduction. Today we are more astonished than ever. We knew the Blue Blade was marvelous—far superior—but we could not anticipate such an enthusiastic reception.

Blue Blade users are almost unanimous in their opinion that here at last is the ultimate in shaving comfort. "Marvelous; a beautiful blade; I've hoped for a blade like this; I'm sold; Finest blade I've ever used"—these are excerpts from written and verbal comments.

The Gillette Blue Super-Blade is made by an entirely new process. It is far keener—uniform in quality—new in color and results. Offered in addition to the regular Gillette blade—it costs only a few cents more and is enclosed in a blue package, wrapped in Cellophane. Buy and try on our positive money-back guarantee. Give the Blue Blade a thorough test. Then—if you don't agree it gives you unparalleled shaving comfort—return the package and the dealer will refund the price.

Show Business Has Boom; Depression Facing Doom

The lights along Broadway look less saffron and more rosy-hued with thirty odd plays on the boards and nine more opening soon.

The customers are hoarding themselves less and coming out of the economic trenches to see what all the sinning and shooting and emotional crises are about.

Philip Merivale, who played the devil-come-to-earth in "Death Takes a Holiday," is in another tough spot in "Cynara" with Phoebe Foster and the latest imported beauty, Adrienne Allen. The play's their wit's ends, someone suggested Ben Lyon to fill the part left vacant by the tragic death of Robert Williams on "Lady With a Past," the Constance Bennett starring vehicle.

Going into fast action the studio got Ben's name on a contract and he went into the production immediately. It may be one of Connie's last pictures since she claims that when she completes her present contract she will turn her back on pictures and live in France with her new hubby, the marquis.

Lyon wasn't like the actor who received a hurry call from a studio to substitute during a player's illness and was told to rush home, put on a dark suit and shave his mustache. During his absence someone asked the producer about the change. He refused to okay it and the player returned to find he was out not only a perfectly good mustache but a job as well.

Carole Lombard has started work on "No One Man," her first appearance before the camera in five months.

"Sing High, Sing Low" attempts to reveal the inner workings of the operatic field, providing that singing is no more simon-pure art than movie-making. ## MINISTERS TO HELP LEGION POST DRIVE IN SERMONS SUNDAY

Ministers of all churches in Xenia and a portion of those throughout the county have designated Sunday as "American Legion Sunday" and in their sermons will pay tribute to the American Legion as an organization, it was announced today. The action was taken as a means of aiding in the campaign for members now in progress for Jos. P. Foody Post of the Legion.

Ministers were glad to be of service to the American Legion they told members of Chairman Harry M. Smith's campaign committee and in several instances suggested points to be brought out in their sermons or as part of their church announcements.

Every ex-serviceman in Greene County today was urged by Legion officials to attend some church Sunday.

"Whether you have been attending church or not in the past, make it a point to visit one of Xenia's churches Sunday or if there is a church nearer you in one of the other towns of the county, go there, but be sure you go," was the urge passed on to all.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED WHEN TWO AUTOS COLLIDE THURSDAY

Four persons were injured, two seriously, when two autos collided on a detour road in Clark County, eleven miles from Xenia, at 11 a. m. Thursday. A fifth person escaped injury.

Mrs. Eleanor W. Wilson, Pontiac, Mich., and her small son, Andrew, 5, were the two most seriously injured being removed to the McClellan Hospital in Xenia shortly after the accident. Both were severely cut and suffered from shock but at the hospital Friday morning were reported resting easily.

Less seriously injured were Howard Neff, and Mrs. J. W. Parker, both of Yellow Springs, occupants of the other car. Neff suffered a badly torn left arm and Mrs. Parker was severely cut about the legs.

Mrs. Wilson, her son and her father, Andrew C. Wilson, of Franklin Rd., Columbus, were on their way to visit William H. Creswell and other relatives and friends near Xenia when the accident occurred. Mr. Wilson was at the wheel of the car and had planned to make the entire trip on Route 42. Forced to take a detour road, Mr. Wilson arrived at the cross road in Coatsville at the same time as the car driven by Mr. Neff. The machines collided, the impact turning the car driven by Neff over beside the road and throwing the Wilson machine around in the highway completely smashing one side. The Neff machine, had just been purchased and was being driven home by Neff with Mrs. Parker as a passenger.

A South Charleston physician gave first aid to the injured parties after which an ambulance brought Mrs. Wilson and the little boy to McClellan Hospital, where Dr. T. F. Myler attended them.
